

WHERE the SPORTING HEART
STIRS

For nearly three-quarters of a century, the Nelson family has farmed and ranched the countryside of north central South Dakota, near Gettysburg. In 1992, the Nelsons began hosting pheasant hunters, as they pioneered habitat management to enhance bird populations. Today Paul Nelson Farm is known worldwide for its extraordinary wingshooting hunts. Located in the heart of pheasant country, the 15,000-acre farm is sustainably managed to harvest both crops...and birds. With unforgettable menus, unrivaled hunting, and an uncommon passion for genial hospitality, the Paul Nelson Farm experience stirs the sporting heart like nowhere else in the world.

“A hunt here at the Farm makes for the kind of day...you hope will never end.” – Paul Nelson

WHERE
LODGING AWAITS

The lodging accommodations are simply legendary, starting with showplace bedroom suites – a feature rarely found among the top tier of fine hunting outfitters. From the Main Lodge to the Buffalo Suites to the King Lodge, you'll be immersed in plush comfort that combines rustic elegance with upscale, upland hominess. Between the three venues, the 35 rooms are showcased with stunning furniture and décor choices. All guests have their own private rooms, with beautiful ensuite bathrooms to complete that home-away-from-home lifestyle. This easy-living atmosphere invites camaraderie and relaxation from one cozy room to the next.

PHEASANTS
FLY

Experience the extraordinary when it comes to pheasant numbers here at the Farm. Mother Nature is always a force to be reckoned with here in South Dakota. But our decades of habitat management combined with the natural nesting power of the Dakota prairie result in bird densities that are simply awe-inspiring. Strategic food plot plantings, native grassland management, and wetland enhancement help grow and nurture pheasant hatchlings to record numbers. Prepare yourself: you will quite literally see clouds of pheasants break and rise as you walk our upland countryside.

WHERE THERE'S A

SEASON

for

ALL

Hunting at the farm is available Sept. 1 through March 31. Certainly fall hunting is pretty incomparable under the burnished skies that mean autumn harvest is here once again. But our habitat and this countryside can also be enjoyed marvelously nearly year round. A growing number of customers relish the satisfaction of our winter hunt packages. Some have called their December hunts “one of the best kept secrets around.” And come summer, we can also craft retreat packages centered around shooting instruction on our world-class clay course. Fly-fishing lessons on the farm’s stocked pond round out our summer sporting activities. More and more companies have also discovered the allure of the farm as a corporate team-building destination. Call for further information on how we can custom create retreat opportunities for your business or family groups. Because to be honest, there just is no less-than-remarkable time...to book a visit to the farm!

are

FORGED

In the realm of innkeeping, the return rate of customers can be one of the most accurate gauges available for measuring customer satisfaction. At Paul Nelson Farm, our guests return at a remarkable rate of 98%. That's a number generally unheard of, in the hunting hospitality business. But maybe that's how we achieve it – because this is so much more than a business. This is our passion, and we are blessed by each guest that comes through our doors. Our intent is to forge relationships in a setting that transcends the traditional! With legendary lodging, epic hunting, and five-star meals, the Paul Nelson Farm experience is truly one like no other.

“We want you extraordinarily comfortable.” – Paul Nelson
